The Repetitions of History.

To the Editor of the New York Times: "History repeats Itself." "And there is never thing under the sun." For the original of the Cleveland Couven-ion see 1st Samuel, 221 chapter, 21 varse: "And every one was in distress, and every one that was in debt, and every one that was discontented, gathered themselves unto him; and he became a Captain over them; and there outlnent, and, having pretty definitely settled were with him about four hundred men.

He, however sults the radical party. His statesmanship is on a par with theirs, and his self-conceit will add something to the stock in that party, vast as it clready is. The rebels might employ Dr. B. o stump the State. He would make two rebels to one Union man.

IN We see that in this contest both sides gat stories from deserters and publish them. That cless of men slwags have something disparaging to say about the army they have left. It does not generally amount to much, and et any rate must be received with more than grains of allowence.

Our correspondent gives rather an amusing account of the siegs of Frankfert. It seems that there were not rebels enough to make any sarious work, but the excitement was none the less, as the small amount of the danger was not known.

The cflicebolders' convention admitted all the delegates from the seconded States into their convention. How did the brothern of the colored persuasion vote on the nomina-

Cap'. Wilson, formerly of the Federal srmy, but who is now out of the service, having resigned his commission, resides in Calhoon, and was at home when the rebels entered the towr. He was obliged to flee to the woods to save himself from violent death at their hands. They surrounded his house, and, with ribild justs, leaulted the members of his family. They plundered the house of everything of value, taking $750 from a drawer, all of Mrs. Wilson's lewelry and a Henry riff s. The guerrillas left Calboon during the night, moving in the direction of Owenshoro tection of this weak Stee. But we repeat what we have frequently said—the bittles of the Central and St.h Am non republics are now fighting to Virginia and Georgis; if Grant is victorious the plans of Napoleon and the hopes of Maximilan wither away; if the rebellion is crushed the French invaders will take themselves out of Maxico, the Spinish burglass will drop the Chinene Irlands and St. Domingo, and the whole tribe of Ear pean despots will suddenly drown any latentious to Austrian Misister at Washington, died at the age of sixty-four, at Goriz'a, in Illyria, whither ac had repaired for the benefit of his declining health, on the 8 h of last March. The demonstrations upon the railroad be tween Louisville and Frankfort on Wednesday and Thursday created amongst us a good deal of enxisty. On Thursday citizen volunteers tock up srms, and pickets ware placed upor the principal roads leading into Frankfort. On Friday morning arxiety became alarm The town was filled with rumors of rebelming to attack us. All were prohibited to to take muskets and all expected an immedi ate attack. But quiet was not d'aturbed, ex copt by apprehension, until about seven o'clock in the afternoon. In the mean time our forces had been stationed at the Shelbyville turnpik bridge on the south, at the Arsens on the east at the railroad bridge on the west, and at the fortifications on the hill north of town. Col Monroe, who had just returned on farlough, was placed in command of all the forces, Sandford Goles, who appolles our people with bells in time of wer, had charge of the arti-bells in time of wer, had charge of the arti-ery at the fort, whilst Gov. Bramlette had py-gives of such power that it makes visible he shadow of an enemy forty miles off. About seven o'c'ook in the afternoon o

About seven o'clock in the afternoon of Friday a horseman came down the Lexington turnpile at full speed, and announced to our forces at the arsenal that the rehela were at the tollgate, which is about a mile and three quarters from the assenal, and acquirated from it by several hills, which it would be difficult for a ball to performe. We, however, having plenty of ammunition, fired three voilers of musketry to let the enemy know we were ready, and not afrail of firearms. This salutary warning had the desired diret, as the enemy stopped at the tollente. At any rate, they did not atlempt to come into town slong the Lexington mad. along the Lexington road.

Immediately after we ceased firing at the arsenal the fort opened on the enemy with both artillers and mosketty. If you suppose Sandford Golna would go up that hill and down again without shooting at something, you don't know him. We, who know him and Governor Bremiette, expected a him tech. overnor Bramlette, expected a big figh when we learned that they had gone up with helr cannon and apy-gian, and we were not

The fort is on the top of the bill which rises oruptly from the northern anhard of Frankon the last, hounded by an open valley, a seep side on the west, bounded by the Kentucky river, its highest point being that on which the earthworks, called a fort, have been thrown up. It descends toward the north until it merges into a valley. In this valley, about one and a quarter miles from the fort, arracks were erected some time since, which were unoccupied at the time of the battle Near the barracks fourteen of our men had a four-pound cannon, which they were forced to shanden without firing, as the enemy advanced upon they before they received any ammunities, and they had no horses to brieg the gun off. This force of the enemy, as I now learn, consisted of fifty men. It was their advance upon the barracks which caused the firing from the fort above mentioned.

As the fort was a mile and a quarter off, the rebels did not seem to be afraid of either the caunon or muskets, but deliberately set fire to the barricks and totally destroyed them. After this piece of vandalism they retired toward Georgetown, leaving our four-pound gus, which they could not earry away, as not man among them was atrong enough to and behind the hills, and continued to shell them until they reached the welghborhood of Georgetown, eighteen miles off. About miduight, having exhausted his amnuttion, Gen. Goins censed firing, though he every were still within range of the Gov-mor's glass. During the musketry firing, two our citizons (very worthy men) were accientally wounded. So began and ended the thek upon the fort, the capture and recap-are of guns by descerate assuit.

During the night a fresh supply of summulon was sent up to the fort, and as soon a Gen. Golus waked up next morning, he com-menced firing in every direction, lucluding South Frankfort, to let everybody know that he was up and doing his duty. In the midst of the cannowade, a rebel named Freeman ap-peared on the scuth side of the river with a flag of truce, and was conducted, blindfolded, to Cel. Monroe. Freeman demanded an un-conditional aurender of the town. Col. Man-roe refused to treat with him, as he had no written demand. Freeman returned across the river and soon made his appearance with another flog of truce, was again conducted to Col. Monroe, and presented a written demand, signed by Col. Jenkies, demanding an unconditional surrender, promising to protect private property and marmed citizens, and to treat armed forces as prisoners of war, and giving assurance that if necless resistance should be made be (Jenkins) would not be respectively.

about thirty muskets. Jankins had twentyone men under his command and no artillery and no way of crossing the river except by awimming. Colonel Monroe refused to surawimming. Colonel Mouroe refused to sur render. Freemen went across the river. As the fort was a mile and a quarter off, the rebels did not seem to be afraid of cliber the cannon or muskets, but deliberately set fire to the barracks and totally destroyed them. After this piece of vaudalism they relifed toward Georgetown, leaving our four-pound gun, which they could not earry sway, as not a man among them was strong enough to shoulder it. We sent down next morning and had it brought up to the fork as we had no further use for it at the barracks.

The Peruvian Trouble.

It appears by the latest advices from South America that the action of the Spenish Admi-ral, Pinzon, in seizing the Chincha islands aroused such a spirit of hostility among the aroused such a spirit of hostility among the insulied republics of that continent that the Spanish authorities deemed it prudent to recede from their first position. Accordingly Admiral Pirzon addressed a note to the Peruvian minister of foreign affairs, alledging that the selezare of the Chinebas had no other object than to force the government of Peru to make reparation for injuries inflicted on Spain. Thereupon a meeting of the diplomatic corps was held at Lima, and a deputation was acut to the Chinebas to propose a penceful settlement. The deputation, consisting of the representatives of England, France and Chill, remained on the leinnds three days and returning reported as the result of their labors the declaration of the Spanish sepatiths Spain has no intention to hold the Chinthe sense of the meeting. After retiring, the that Spain has no intention to hold the Chin-chas if Peru will pay the claims of the Span-ish government, leaving individual claims to be settled by a mixed commission. The Brit-ish war ship Leander, which brought back the delegation, also brought in tow the Peruvian war steamer Iquique, the Spanish Admiral having given her up voluntarily. The report of the deputation, however, does not appear to have been salisfictory to the Paruvian government, been saliafictory to the Peruvian government, who refined to receive the ship and declined to refer upo any negotiations with the agents of Span until they withdraw from the occupation of his territory. The Spanish Minister, Sanor Mezaredo, thereupon immediately salied for Europe. His reception at Panama was not altogether compilmentary to the dignified position of a representative of Her Most Catholic Majerty, as appears from the account given by the Punama Star, viz:

The Spanish Commissioner came upon the last steamer en route for Spalu. He was followed all the way by Peruvian emissaries, paid to assassinate him, if necessary, and secure his papers. He stopped here over night, and whilst at the French Consulate was assisted with a chiswir of his post, &c, by a Panama mob. But few decent people took part in it. Next morning at about five o'clock he escaped in a hand car to Aspiawall, where he arrived safely, and had just time to get his things on hoard the British steamer when his pursuers arrived on the regular train, greatly discussed at missing their prey. The French Cousul has taken up the insult offered to his residence by the mob, and it will no doubt lead to trouble between France and New Granads. who refused to receive the ship and declined

ticle upon this subject, forcibly says: Richmond, it is universally admitted, is fortified to su extent which makes it now one of the strongest positions on the continent. De-scribe e circle eround the city with a radius of five miles, and from center to circumfer ence there is everywhere a net-work of fortifi-cations, defended by the heaviest guna, and so built that the loss of one position does not involve that of any other. To completely investible position, Grant's forces would extend at least forty miles; at present his iline reaches from Coal Harbor to Hanover—a distance, at most, of not more than ten miles. This is about one quarter of the extent actually to be covered when the investment of the city is completed.

We hear much about starving out the Richmond garrison. At present Grant occupies a position ucribest of the city, white all the rebel lines of supply reach Richmond from the south and southwest. In such a position of affairs how long will it take Grant to "starve out" Richmond?

At Vickeburg heard impossible size in ompleted.

"starve out" Richmond?
At Vicksburg a broad, impassable river invested one half of the position more effect-naily than would so bundred thousand men; at Richmond no such help exists, and what was done at Vicksburg, by the friendly waters of the Mississippi, must at Richmond be done by walls of Federal bayonets.

Therefore, the riege of Richmond is not begun, and therefore should people not be in haste to replace over the consummation of enaffair that in truth beauty act and a herip-

FANCY BOILER-MAKING.—We lately examined a large boiler in one of the English blocks de runners. It was built apparently to carry very low steam—the lower the better, according to our opinion. It was square and had horizontal tubes, but the absence of braces was a most remarkable feature. The water bottoms under the furnaces had not a staybut tunder them, neither had the water spaces or itself but tubes the lunnaces there were not under them, neither had the water spaces or legght above the lurinees' there were love ponder in bolte—shatts we might say—best 11% or 2 inches thick, rouning across the boster about two feet spart, and similar braces up and down, from the water bottom to the top of the theil. There was not a single brace on the arches, nor yet between them, and the consequence of omitting them was plainly shown in the bulging and distorted sides. A curious piece of deception was practiced by the maker of the boiler, putting in sham socket bott-heads, a thing we never saw done before. The outside shell was studded as thick with boil-heads as a patent safe la with knobs, but on looking baside the space there was nothing but rivet-heads. This may be termed fancy boiler-making. It was built in Pai ley, Scotland.—[Scientific American.

AN INTERESTING CASE -It is an old saying that "truth is stranger than fiction," and during the present war many instances have been brought to light which go to verify the above saying, and our own city has furnished many examples which prove the same. A few days since a young lady, who had previously been engaged to a young man who entered Uncle Sam's army, was united in the holy bands of wedlock to another gentleman, thinking that her first love, as reported, bad been kil'ed in one of the engagements at the front some months since. The day after the wedding the first love reinracd to the city, and, calling upon the yourg lady, was horrified at finding that she who had sworn to be true to him had married spother. There was a meeting between the two, and the young bride left the clay with her first love, leaving her husband behind without a word of consolution. We suppress the names of the parties.

LOUISVILLE CITY DIRECTORY. Canvassing to Commence at Once.

We give notice some days ago that we lucity at 5 o'clock yesterday morning, and went tonded to prepare and leane a City Directory, through without detention, arriving in Lex. to be gotten up with the greatest care, and ington on time. The train started back for upon the accuracy of which we would risk our the city from Lexington, and when at Midway reputation, as we design from this beginning It was stopped, as gueralilas were reported to publish it annually, if it meets public exjust this side of that place, awaiting the arrival pectation. It is no small undertaking, but

It has been suggested by several leading merchants and citiz we that it would be well for us to await the action of the City Council iu s a force of some two hundred rebels at a regard to numbering the streets. It is argued done with the utmost regularity, the old numbers in all cases taken down or obliterated while the new numbers should go up in reguconsiderable force collecting at Monterey, with ler order, one after the other. By this eyethe view of cutting the road and destroying tem the stranger or citizen would without difficulty be able to trace any named resident and find a ready guide to the bouses of all.

Should the Council conclude to order the city to be numbered as proposed, while it will add to our labor, as much of the work of HOLLOWAY'S PILLS AND GINTMENT, For Wounds, precuring names, &c , has already been done, we shall most gladly, in our forthcoming volume furnish the names, residence and number of every citizen recording to the new numbers to be furnished under the proposed action of the City Council.

Other branches of the work la progress en he pushed forward, and the list of names and of residences left till the last, so that we may avail opractives of the new numbering, which

Meantime we will wait upon merchants and manufacturers for their tusiness cards, which we can prepare corefully and submit to then should the Council order it done. Specimen numbers of the Directory may b seen in the possession of our carvassess.

The party in power had changed the war for the restoration and preservation of the Union to a war for the distraction of the union to a war for the distraction of the contraction of the union to a war for the distraction of the contraction. lavery, as they boldly avow a the only means of preserving Union. President Lincoln had said avowed him and others of the Kesiucky delegation to the last Coegress that the means which were being taken to bring back the succeed States were based upon the bellef that there was large number of people of these States in ta-var of the Uelon, but if it was established that those people were unanimous in favor of eparation, the other States could not lore separation, the other States could not loree them back into the Union. Lincoln had not acted upon this. He had viciated the Constitution, and justified it upon the ground of necessity, and regarded that as a sufficient reason for committing the outrage or globalium of the Constitution. He Mallory, the constitution of the Constitution. denounced the employment of negro soldiers, and indersed the assertion of the gentleman from New York, that slavery was the best could be condition for the negro race. He cared that the course parend by the Government had rendraed the restoration of the nment had renumed the long on, how-nlen impossible. He still hoped on, how-ner, and would prosecute the war for that ever, and would prosecute the war for that purpose, excrying offers of peace and forgive-ness whenever the rebels would lay down their arms and return to their allegiance.

Mr. Kelly, of Pennsylvania, advocated the adoption of the smendment upon the ground of justice and humanity. If the State of the gentleman from Kentucky was scourged and desoluted by war, it was because there was a fixed who averged the wrongs of his children. iod who averged the wrongs of his children

He argued that we had no right to make the charge is the Constitution. A point of such a policy was witnessed in the present condition of the country. He traced the sgration of the negro question, which had led to the clumph of the Republican party, and the withdrawal of the South, they believing that their rights were no longer secure in the Union. He opposed the amendment as a subvirsion of the rights of property, the alliged party in power was to elevate the ne-gro to juiltical rights and reduce the white per ple of the South to subjugation.

Mr. Arnold, of Ill, briefly advocated the passage of the resolution.

Vallandingham made his appearance at the meetatle District Convention, held at Ilamliton to-day, with apparent surprise to a lar-ger portion of the assembly. He was received with great enthusiasm. He apoke briefly from written documents, narrating his arrest, and deteuding his arts. He said that the assertion of the President that he was arrested because he had inbored with some of free to prevent raising troops and ecocorage caserion from the army, or had disobeyed or falled to counsel obedience to lawful suthority, was absolutely false. He appealed for ploof, to every speech by had made, and to the record of the military commission, by the trial and sentence of which he was convicted. The sele offense laid to my charge, was words of critics of the public policy of Llocoln, addressed to a few political meetings of telelw-chilzens.

The Secretary of the Treasury has ceased issuing these stated in the account which we reprinted from the Albany Atlas and Argue, the decision is withdrawing gradually the greenbacks. It was erroneously assumed that by reducing the Government circulation tha currency would appreciate, but it has been found that the banks increase their circulation even in greater proportion, particularly at the East. It is evient that there is not currency enough now in circulation for the increased business of the country. In proof of this it may be stated that at Cincinnati the rate of interest has risen to the old usual rate there of $410 per cent., a feature very satisfactory to bankers ne doubt, but disastrous to the general business of the country. WASHINGTON, June 14.

Rumors are in town to-day that Sheridan has reached Gordonsville, on the way to join Hunter and destroy the Richmond and Lynch-Hunter and destroy the Richmond and Lynch-burg rsitroad, one of the principal avenues by which the rebel capital was supplied. It is understood he will pay a visit to Charlottes-ville immediately, and accomplish all the damage possible to the reliroad and depote. His pathway is accommanded by a large cavairy and artillers force, and he is fully able to cope and artiflery force, and he is fully able to cop with any tody of the enemy with whom he may fall in.

It was suspected at the time Sheridan started he would pass ground the south side of Richmond and sever the communications leading out of that city. This parlion of the campaign should have been intrusted to Kaulz, who once before raided over the terri tory, and is, therefore, familiar with the Since Sheridan's destination has been dis-

Since Sheridan's destination has been disclosed, the importance of his movement is made apparent. The column is intended to act vigilantly and effect vely in the territory in which he is now engazed. His mission is understood to be not only to capture Charlottes-viile and Lynchburg, but a complete and thorough destruction of the railroad connecting them with Gordonsville. With Sheridan's as sistance, we may be enabled to penetrate still further into the country, and effect the capture of Danville. It is well known that the ture of Danville. It is well known that the railroad lines leading to the rettel capital are now taxed to their utmost capacity to supply the inhabitants of Richmond and the immense army of Lee. The people of Richmond are already suff ring from short rations, and it the railroad lines leading to immense stelds of depositories in Western and Southern Virginiand, the Schemandesh valley are certed. ginia and the Shenandosh valley are cut off, the rebs will be compelled to send away all the non-combatants, and place the city in a state

The Times' Washington special of the 14 h says a scout from the front says that Sheridan has not been heard from, but it is supposed that he had reached Charlottesville in May.

The Lynchburg Tribune correspondent, with Sherman, June 1st, says concerning a movement of gigantic minoctance, which was encressfully accomplished to-day by McPherson, commanding the Army of Tennessee, and Hooker, commanding the Twentieth army corps. The nature of this movement the public should not know at present, and though the object for which this bold and comewhat hazirdone operation, undertaken in the face of the enemy, may be exposed before the Cop-perhead press could tell its Southern readers our plane, yet I prefer to wait the progress of events before disclosing it. We are on the eve of a bitter arrugale, and forty-eight hours may determine the pishs of two caudous, de-transparent the plants of two cannon; determined Generals, intent on the annihilation of each other's legions.

The Tribute's special from headquarters, Cold Harbor, Va., June 10th, says comparative tranquility regns along the lines to-day, and the men repose in accurity within their treacher; but occasionally rifle balls or shells from the enemy's works, every evidence of his from the enemy's works give evidence of his readiness to defend himself. reactaces to delend him (Special to the Times.)

NEW YORK, June 15.

The Richmond Examiner, of the 5.h, says, out of more than 17,000 prisoners at Andersouville, Gs., upwards of 3,000 died there. The average mortality was 359 daily, with a prospect of an increase. On the 8.n instant over 1,000 were to be sent there from Rohmond, theing the general depot. On the 9.h last 1,000 more were to be sent. The officers are quartered at Macon, Ga. Letters for those prisoners should be directed to these new prisoners should be directed to these new

The World's Washington special says that, although many deem the three hundred do. isr exemption clause injurious, the impression now prevails that its repeal won't pass the liquie. Within a few days a draft for 200,000 more men is expected to be ordered. The World's Mex'can correspondent relates, from personal observation, most horrible outrages committed by French troops on the match, and several places captured were burned. Male inhabitable were burchered and all women and girls were raised in burned. Male inhabitable were butchered and all women and girls were raped in open day and places given up to the beastly soliciery for three days. The same cutrages were repeated at Guadala. Gray's Patent Molded Collars

HAVE NOW BEEN REPORT THE PURILIC FOR nearly a year. They are universally pronounced the nearlest and least fitting collary extant.

The upper edge presents a teriod on we, free from the agies noticed in all other collary.

The crawal causes no puckers on the lastice of the tern-down collar-they are AS SMOOTH INN BE ACCUTSIDE—and therefore perfectly free and easy to the eck. Oarotte Collar has a smooth and evenly finished dec on morti filiki.
These Collars are not simply fist rices of paper on a the form of a collar, but are MOLDED AND sita Phil O FIT THE NECK.
